RICH CHICAGOAN IS IN MODEL'S SLAYING

However, About a Dozen Other Admirers Are Also Sought.

Philadelphia, Jan. 2—A wealthy Chicagoan, with membership in several exclusive Philadelphia clubs, is being sought by detectives in the slaying of Mrs. Grace Roberts, twenty-two, artist's model, found beaten to death in her apartment here.

The finding of a Chicago timetable in her rooms and the fear she expressed that a Chicago man would keep his vow to "get" her started the murder squad on a new track.

A friend of the model, who also was known as Mazie Colbert, told Captain of Detectives Lane of the terror the proposed visit had aroused in the slain girl.

Police believe the woman, known as the "hostess girl" because of the reproduction of her photograph in advertisements, was slain by a man she had beguiled and then discarded. Twelve photographs of men prominent in the social life of Philadelphia and New York were found in the apartment.

The installation was opened with the beautiful and impressive flag ceremonies by Friendship lodge, which at once proceeded with the installation of its officers. Worshipful Brother Baum officiated as installing officer and Worshipful Brother Ayres as installing marshal and duly installed into their respective offices: Brother Glenn F. Coe, W. M., H. H. (Special to Telegraph) Steward, Ill., Jan. 2—Smith, aged 45, a stone mason and bricklayer of this village, died at the Lincoln hospital in Rochelle this morning as the result of being shot through the stomach by Constable John Buckley last night.

End of a Spree. Smith's tragic death was the result of an all-day New Year spree, during which he became quarrelsome, driving his wife and two children from their home and then coming down town in quest of more trouble, it is said.

He went into the Luxton store just before 10 o'clock last night and seeing the constable there immediately attempted to pick a quarrel with him. The officer was as patient as could be expected, according to witnesses and finally, having taken all the man's abuse he could, attempted to place Smith under arrest.

SMITH REACHED FOR GUN.

Smith, it is said by witnesses, reached for his gun, which was afterwards found in his pocket, but the constable drew quickly and fired, the bullet penetrating Smith's stomach. He was taken immediately to the hospital at Rochelle but was beyond the aid of the physicians, and died this morning.

DISAGREE ON INQUEST

At a late hour this afternoon no arrangements had been made for conducting an inquest, due to a disagreement between Coroner Whetston of Lee county and Coroner Unger of Ogle county. The Lee county official claims that as the shooting occurred in Lee county the inquest should be held here, while Coroner Unger holds that because the victim died in Ogle county the inquiry should be held there.

In the meantime Constable Buckley is under bonds, but public opinion in Steward is that he is blameless and it is not considered likely he will be held after the inquest.

THIS IS CERTAIN

THE PROOF THAT DIXON READERS CANNOT DENY

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

C. J. Kirkham, 522 Peoria Ave., Dixon, says: "I suffered from pains across my back for a long time. I didn't think the trouble was caused by disordered kidneys, but when a friend recommended Doan's Pills, I got a box at Leake Bros. Drug store. They completely rid me of the backache and all other symptoms of kidney complaint."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mr. Kirkham said: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney disease and the cure has been permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kirkham has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

LOCAL MASONS INSTALL OFFICERS

Past High Priest L. W. Newcomer as installing officer and Past High Priest N. H. Jensen as installing marshal, duly installed the following officers:

Rodney M. Ayres, H. P., Mark C. Keller, King, G. H. Beckingham, Scribe, A. B. Whitcombe, Sec., Glenn P. Coe, C. H., Louis F. Cooling, P. S., Lee Read, R. A. C., Harry Quick, M. 3rd V., Bert Smice, M. 2nd V., F. D. Dana, M. 1st V., E. E. Mason, sentinel.

At the close of the installation of the officers of Friendship lodge, Brother Baum, on behalf of the fraternity, in brief but well chosen words expressive of the high esteem in which Brother Beckingham was held by the members of his lodge, and in token of their appreciation of his untiring efforts and zeal as Worshipful Master presented him with a handsome Past Master's jewel.

Following the installation of the officers of Nachusa Chapter No. 56, Companion Newcomer in his happy and pleasing manner and in words most appropriate for the particular occasion presented to Companion W. D. Baum a very elaborate Past High Priest's jewel on behalf of the chapter, as an expression of their sincere appreciation of the excellent administration he had given them during the past year.

Words cannot express the beautiful and highly entertaining manner in which Past Worshipful Matron Emma Elsler presented to Alma Moeller, retiring Worshipful Matron, a Past Matron's jewel as a proper token of the high esteem in which she is held by the members of Dorothy Chapter and as a unanimous expression of their appreciation of her untiring efforts to do all that is best for the welfare of the order and as a recognition of the exceptional ability displayed by her in the discharge of the duties of Worshipful Matron during the past year. Brother Mark C. Keller, Right Worshipful District Grand Master, in a few words appropriate to the dignity of the occasion presented Brother R. M. Ayres, the retiring Worshipful Patron, a handsome set of cuff buttons bearing upon each emblem of the Order of the Eastern Star. The beautiful and dignified manner in which the escort to the installing officers, composed of Mrs. Mark Brown, Past Worshipful Matron, Mrs. W. W. Woolley and Margaret Anderson, Past Worshipful Matron, performed their parts in the installation ceremonies was exceedingly impressive to those present and highly complimentary to themselves. The exceptional ability displayed by Mrs. R. M. Ayres, Past Worshipful Matron of Dorothy Chapter, in her capacity as presiding Matron of the installation ceremonies was strikingly noticeable to all present.

Ellen L. Dysart, Past Worshipful Matron, as installing chaplain in her own cultured and refined way added to the august ceremonies of the evening just the proper tinge of solemnity for the occasion. Mrs. L. W. Miller presided at the piano as installing organist and with cleverness and precision added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening's festivities.

Music befitting and appropriate for the evening was excellently rendered by an orchestra and it is hoped that this feature which added so much to the enjoyment of the installation ceremonies will continue to be a part of the annual affair hereafter.

Much might be said, if space would permit, of the able and pleasing manner in which each of the installing officers above named performed their several duties. But it is sufficient to say that the work was of such a high class that in each instance it could not have been done better.

The ceremonies of installation closed at 12 o'clock p. m. About 250 people were then served with ice cream, cake and coffee. After refreshments were over all those present enjoyed dancing until the early hour of two o'clock a. m., when the musicians called a "strike." Everybody left declaring they had had a royal good time, "the best ever."

Forman-Wold

An attractive wedding of Saturday was that of Miss Gertrude E. Wold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wold of 715 Third street, and Frank X. Forman, also of this city. Rev. E. C. Lumsden, pastor of the First Methodist Church, read the service before a small company of relatives and friends. The wedding was kept simple in its appointments. There were no attendants.

The wedding gown was a flesh colored Georgette crepe combine with crepe de chine and the bride's bouquet was of bride's roses arranged in the conventional shower effect. The ceremony took place under an arch of smilax and with a white wedding bell at the apex, with a bank of palms and ferns as a background. The arch was arranged in the bay window of the living room. White and green were tastefully combined in the other decorations of the house. The ceremony occurred late in the afternoon and was followed by a wedding luncheon.

White roses formed the centerpiece of the luncheon table while bands of smilax and pink ribbons were gracefully draped from the chandelier at the corners of the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Forman left on the 6:20 train for Chicago where they will visit for a time. The traveling costume was of tete de nigre hat and suit to match. The suit was of broadcloth with seal trimmings. Upon their return they will be at home to their many friends at 608 West First street, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Forman are both prominent young people, members of lodges, and hold the sincere esteem of a large group of friends. Mr. Forman is the head of an exclusive tailoring establishment. Mrs. Forman has been connected with the Eichler Bros.' store for a considerable time.

Guests at the wedding included Miss Grace Barnes of Sycamore, a school friend of the bride.

THE WORLD GROPE FOR PEACE.

Henry Clews, New York banker, in his weekly financial report, says in part:

The year 1917 opens with the mind of the world groping for peace. A year ago it was wholly bent upon war; now it is more and more devoted to ways and means of bringing the ghastly struggle to a close. There are those well informed who believe that peace is nearer than commonly supposed, because Germany is prepared to make greater concessions than expected while others as confidently claim that Germany will at present propose no terms that the allies are willing to accept. The latter class of believers also incline to the opinion that if present peace movements fail, in spite of their strong support by neutral nations, the war will be resumed on both sides with renewed vigor and bitterness. An inconclusive ending of the war would be disastrous to civilization, inasmuch as it would not unlikely precipitate a second war as soon as the most aggressive belligerents sufficiently recovered, hence an absolute binding, copper-fastened settlement must be attained, including all the belligerents.

This country has been sorely perplexed for several years by a multitude of new political experiments, not a few of which will be abandoned on being tried out. We need political rest, and there are enough grave questions ahead to fully tax all the ability and strength of the present congress without multiplying trouble by projecting new sets of nostrums. The administration might with advantage turn its attention to checking national extravagance. During the coming year it is estimated that the country's expenses will be from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 in excess of receipts, while the deficit may be enlarged by advances in pay of government employees, as well as excessive appropriations for public buildings, rivers and harbors. These outlays follow the heavy increases for the army and navy, necessitated by "preparedness," and will impress upon the country the fact that it must face heavy increase in taxation that will prove more burdensome when business is on the wane than now. Various proposals are already under consideration, such as bond issue, an increase in the tax on liquor and tobacco, an increase in the inheritance tax, an extension of the income tax to smaller incomes, and the raising of the tariff on imports, including tea and coffee. There is also a strong movement for a protective tariff on chemicals, and in all probability there will be a strong agitation for long general tariff revision; though adjustment upwards will be less unsettling to business than the reverse. A factor also that should not be overlooked is the Mexican problem, which is far from being solved and may invite an outbreak when least expected.

THE RAILROAD WAGE QUESTION

Repentance at leisure seems to be the occupation now of the four railroad brotherhoods after their strenuous raid on congress and capture, last fall, of an 8-hour law. Like the remarkable specimens sometimes exhibited by the late Barnum, this law seems to be the only one of its kind in captivity, and a very poor kind at that. The endeavor in conference with the committee of railroads, has been to have the law rescinded and blotted off of the books as though it had never existed. The Indianapolis News quotes the president of the Brotherhood as replying, when questioned as to whether the Adamson law gave the Brotherhood the thing for which they had contended:

"I do not know; I do not know what that law means, and I have never yet found anybody who did know. I am willing to pay a nice sum to the person who can tell me what it means." The film producers, if this were a movie, would here reproduce upon the screen the tragic episode of the hold-up—congress sitting in solemn session scared to death—the four brothers in the gallery masked and cloaked, with big pistols levelled at the innocent law makers, followed by the sombre materialization out of the smoky background of the abortive 8-hour legislative prodigy; then everything fading into blackness.

For sound common sense on this subject, probably the declaration of the Pennsylvania State Grange is the most convincing that has been thus far expressed. This was approved by the farmers present at the convention in Philadelphia on the 14th inst. and was as follows:

"The farmer is neither an object of pity nor subject for charity. He is not asking for special favors nor class legislation. He has practiced the 8-hour law ever since Adam was driven out of the Garden of Eden, eight hours in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon, and the rest of the time he just works. The Grange seeks the 'greatest good to the greatest number,' and believes that this just principle might well be followed by our lawmakers. It is neither right nor just for our national congress to enact laws for a few at the expense of the many. Arbitration is the only fair and just means of settling disputes when the parties thereto cannot agree. No legislation should be enacted that even tends to create class feeling or widen the breach that now exists between capital and labor, and labor should realize that it cannot exist without capital. Each is dependent upon the other. Congress should take such steps and enact such laws as will impress upon both parties that 'everybody is bigger than anybody.' And that it will not permit the wheels of progress to be blocked, even if it has to take over the railroads and operate them until a peaceful settlement is obtained. It is extremely dangerous for the government to even attempt to fix a wage scale or establish hours of labor, unless the hours so established shall apply for all classes of labor.

"Should the law be applied to agriculture or to the labor on the farm it would be a serious blow to the farmer, as he could never get his work done under an 8-hour day, nor could he afford to pay a man for ten hours' work when he worked but eight."

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Fine

Cheaply and Easily Made, but Does the Work Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations.—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (30 cents worth). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effective, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiaecol and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

PRINCESS THEATRE

Tonight the Princess theatre will present a Mutual Star production entitled "Doorsteps," a screen version of the famous English comedy drama which was one of the biggest of stage successes, featuring Florence Turner. Florence Turner is first and last an actress. She has been called "Bernhardt of the cinema" and she justly earned this phrase of approbation. There is no part she does not make stand out, and there is no phrase of film acting that she does not comprehend.

Time For Little but War Abroad In 1916

Photos by American Press Association.

Pictorial Phases of Year's Events Abroad

1, King Constantine of Greece; 2, French soldiers protected by masks against a gas attack on the Somme front; 3, Sir Roger Casement, hanged for participation in Irish rebellion; 4, Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who died; 5, Roumanian infantry, which entered war this year; 6, Earl Kitchener, Britain's war minister, drowned; 7, the Sussex, cross channel steamer, torpedoed by a submarine; 8, British battleship battered off Jutland during greatest sea battle in history.

By Captain GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.

SURPRISES have not ceased in the surprising world war, now well into its third year. The more important of these surprises in 1916 have been in France, at sea, on the Italian front and in the Balkans. In January the Germans, who were supposed to be on the defensive in France, sprang a vicious attack along a five mile front in the Champagne. Farther north, on Vimy ridge, and at Ypres, Belgium, they stormed British trenches, 800 yards and 600 yards in length. While attention was thus drawn to the northern front the Germans suddenly launched heavy attacks on Feb. 22 north of Verdun, starting a tremendous drive against that famous salient, which the crown prince originally struck at in August, 1914. Three days later Fort Douaumont, four miles from the city, was captured following a bombardment which nearly razed its walls. Next day the Germans captured six fortified French villages and on the 29th shifted the attack from the north to the southeast. Fighting continued for weeks. The middle of May it was evident that the French line would hold in front of the city itself.

The element of surprise in the Verdun drive lay in that the Germans would risk heavy losses in storming fortifications for the mere purpose of apparently shortening their front.

Counterdrive by the Allies.

It has been hinted that the German offensive at Verdun was launched to forestall an expected Anglo-French offensive against the German communication farther north. Such a movement was launched the 1st of July along the river Somme and the river Aisne, Peronne and Bapaume being the objectives. Every day for two weeks either the French or British plunged forward, now capturing a village, now a woods. Again the Germans would retake ground by desperate counterattack. Supposed keys like Contalmaison and Combles were captured, but Peronne and Bapaume still cover the railroad along which the Germans on the battle line in France receive their supplies through Belgium. At the end of two weeks of forward movements on the Somme, Lloyd-George, British minister of war, exclaimed in a council of leaders, "Victory is beginning to flow in our direction."

Russia Comes Back.

Lloyd-George evidently included in the flow of victory Russia's great enterprises in her southwest war zone, Bukovina and eastern Galicia. The Russians had been expelled from the Warsaw and Vistula line in the autumn of 1915, but a considerable body remained in eastern Bukovina and just outside its borders. The Austro-Germans had also left garrisons for their original fortifications there. Early in January the Russians began a drive in the vicinity of Czernowitz. Nothing of consequence resulted, but the movement, taken in connection with attacks in the district of Vlna and Divinsk, in the north, gave proof that Russia still had aggressive power. In June General Brusiloff assumed command in the southwest and, aiming for Lemberg, turned the flank of the Austrian defenses in Volhynia and Bukovina. In one week the Russians claimed 80,000 prisoners, captured the fortress of Dubno, also Czernowitz, and were marching upon Lutsk and Kovel. But about the time that Lloyd-George voiced his optimism the Russians found themselves checked on the river Stokhod and on the Dniester, south.

Greatest of Naval Battles.

Lloyd-George also had in mind the naval battle of Jutland, which took place on the last day of May. This has been called the greatest naval action in history. It was the greatest to date in this war. The British claimed a great victory, which amounts to a confession that the German navy is by no means a negligible factor. The Germans ventured to sea seeking battle. They overcame the advance British column and were not checked until the heavy British battleships arrived on the scene.

Both sides lost heavily in battleships, cruisers, destroyers and men. In a tactical sense the action was a draw, but it demonstrated that the German navy is not "bottled up."

Early in the spring the Italians resumed activities on the line of the Isonzo, particularly at Goritz. In April the Austrians suddenly began an offensive against Italian positions in Trentino, which the latter had invaded May, 1915. This move was a complete surprise and forced the Italians into hurried retreat. At the end of May Austria reported 80,000 prisoners and 200 cannon as the spoils of two months' operations. By the middle of June the Italians had turned on their enemy, and the great offensive was checked.

The Austrian movement was evidently timed to affect Italy's aggressive movements in the south, where the objective of the Italians is Trieste. Goritz stood in the way of progress toward the coveted citadel. It fell Aug. 9. Since the fall of Goritz the Italians have made slow progress toward Trieste.

Something was needed in the allied camps at midsummer to pull up waning hopes, hopes dashed by the abandonment of the Gallipoli expedition early in January, the surrender of Kut-el-Amara with 10,000 British soldiers in April, the subjugation of Serbia and Montenegro and the menacing situation in Greece. The allies' infantry from Gallipoli had been transferred to Saloniki with the evident purpose of marching northward and taking the Bulgarian forces in Serbia and on their own borders in the rear.

Serious Outlook For Germany.

In some respects it seemed as though the allies had unleashed a dead weight by abandoning the Gallipoli attack upon Constantinople. The Russians almost from the beginning of the war had been coming down into Asia Minor in a direction which would bring them into junction with the British column moving up the Tigris river toward Baghdad. In February Russia captured Erzerum, Mesopotamia, from the Turks. This was followed two months later by the capture of Trebizond, on the Black sea. Russia's southward march from bases in her own home territory, backed up by her fleet on the Black sea, really a strategic prolongation of her line in Bukovina and Galicia, constituted a menace to German ambition in the near east.

The elimination of Serbia as a factor, which was made certain in the winter of 1916, and the certainty that Turkey could be relied upon for troops and supplies, coupled with the apparent difficulty of the allies in launching a stroke in the back of the Teutonic powers through Greece, brought up again the supposed German dream of a Berlin to Bagdad route. This dream was dissipated when it became evident that Russia was forcing the Turks out of Mesopotamia and effectively co-operating with the allies at Saloniki. The situation of Germany had a serious look as autumn came on, with Verdun untenable, the allies storming a third line on the Somme and the Russians displaying enough vigor in their southwest to hold the Austrian forces at full strength in Volhynia, Bukovina and Greece. Then suddenly Roumania cast her lot with the allies and, as it was supposed, added 400,000 men to the enemies of the Teuton on the Vienna to Constantinople line.

Von Hindenburg Scores Again.

How Von Hindenburg turned to grapple with this new foe is the most surprising chapter in the history of the war, a new example of efficiency at headquarters and in the fighting ranks. No check worthy of the name was suffered after crossing two frontiers into converging armies met before doomed Bukarest, taken on Dec. 6.

Roumania seems to have repeated the French blunder of August, 1914, when, instead of going to the aid of Belgium, Joffre sent a big army to recover Alsace. Instead of snatching Bulgaria, Roumania marched north into Hungary, a move which invited Germans and Bulgars to strike at her vitals from the south. So, while Von Mackensen marched and conquered in the general direction of the Danube, central Roumania and Bukarest, the Roumanians, who had poured over her northern border, were easily turned back, their conquests wrested from them and the entire venture of the last of the Balkan states was turned into a fizzle, so far as support of the allies was concerned. There remains Greece—at least the rebellious part of it—to stimulate the hope that the Teutonic powers may yet receive a vital thrust in the back. The conquest of Roumania required time, energy and lives. Whether the compensation will equal the investment time alone can tell. The end of 1916 finds the German powers resourceful in men and undaunted in spirit. On the other hand, the allies' cabinets are reorganizing to restore the flow of victories to the channels of midsummer. Lloyd-George became British premier Dec. 7.

Miscellaneous Events.

Minor events of the war were the torpedoing of the British channel steamer Sussex, the transfer of the submarine war zone across the Atlantic in October and General Kitchener's death at sea. Air craft battles have been many, fierce and deadly; casualties of all kinds have been heavy.

Outside of war the old world has been normal, with the exception of a brief rebellion in Ireland, which had been expected and was ruthlessly suppressed. Japan and Russia formed an agreement, and Japan made new demands upon China, whose ruler, Yuan Shih Kai, died in June. Deaths abroad during the year included Franz Joseph, emperor and king; Carmen Sylva, Rou-

ALLIES REJECT PEACE, BERLIN

This impression may be modified some papers state, when the official text reaches Berlin. Thus far the only version here is that sent by the Havas News agency, a French bureau, which has repeatedly incurred the suspicion of the German press. For this reason a faint hope is held by some of the conservative organs that when the official text arrives it may become evident that the allies are leaving the door open for peace.

Talk of "War to Knife."

On the face of what is known thus far, however, there seems no doubt that the entente has hurled the gauntlet to the central empires and their allies, flatfootedly rejecting the proposal to come together and talk peace.

Already the leading military experts, and particularly "firebrand" journalists, such as Count Ernst Zu Reventlow, are proclaiming "war to the knife," asserting that now, since the allies have declined peace by diplomacy, they must be forced to accept peace by the sword.

Sarcasm and irony feature the comments of this element of the press. The aptest note is generally characterized as "hypocritical" and as a "rare collection of empty sophistries."

Current Topics Club

Mrs. C. P. Reid will entertain the Current Topics club tomorrow afternoon.
